

The Largely Unknown History of Blackface in Canada

Artist Sues Country Rapper Who Shot Paintings With Assault Rifle

The New Museum's Bathroom Nominated as "America's Best Restroom"

Required Reading

Hrag Vartanian 3 hours ago

THE LATEST

POPULAR

- 1 Lee Krasner's Early Prophecies
- 2 Patrons Wore Blackface and Colonial-Era Costumes to Party at AfricaMuseum
- 3 Required Reading
- 4 Joseph Pierce on Why Academics Must Decolonize Queerness
- 5 Is George Herriman the Greatest American Visual Artist?

Advertise on Hyperallergic with Nectar Ads

This week, Lewis Hine's child labor images, assessing Artforum's #MeToo fallout, New York's most "toxic" museum boards, the rise of the right on YouTube, dissecting an Instagram influencer, and more.

SPONSORED

BOOKS • WEEKEND

Is George Herriman the Greatest American Visual Artist?

David Carrier 3 days ago

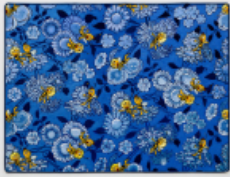

- 1 Call to Artists: Public Art Commission for the New Governor Mario M. Cuomo Bridge

Out of seemingly meager materials, Herriman created a complete world, a place where nothing ever changes and where his characters never develop, yet his sense of humor is almost infallible.

Milena Büsch's Large Paintings Parody Consumer Culture

Max L. Feldman 3 days ago

These deceptively decorative works critique the conventions and implied values of the classic bourgeois interior.

An Artist's Maps of Imperialism and Greed

Carl Little 3 days ago

Dan Mills delves into the devastating numbers of threatened populations around the world and then converts them into chaotically beautiful cartographies.

Lee Krasner's Early Prophecies

Tim Keane 3 days ago

Krasner's teacher, Hans Hofmann, told her that her work was so good, you would have never known it was done by a woman.

Finding Quality Time Through Art

Valentina Di Liscia 3 days ago

With subversive wit and trenchant humor, the artists in Quality Time expose the arbitrary nature of society's benchmarks for meaning.

ART • WEEKEND

Roger Brown's Innovative Still Lives

John Yau 3 days ago

Brown was interested in mishaps and disasters, but above all, he was interested in what it meant to be American.

In Praise of Painting's Ambiguity, Part 3

John Yau 3 days ago

Jasper Johns breaks down the image of a broken man.

IN BRIEF

18,000 Illegally Trafficked Cultural Goods Seized in an International Crackdown

Hakim Bishara 3 days ago

Operation Pandora III, carried out by the Spanish Civil Guard, Europol, Interpol, and the World Customs Organization, included a special focus on illicit online trafficking. 59 individuals were arrested in the operation.

News Update 3 days ago

Police Arrest Suspect for Alleged Arson Threat to Exhibition | Police arrested a man suspected of making an arson threat against the Aichi Triennale, the Japan Times reported. “I will bring a gasoline container to the museum,” the threatening fax read, referencing a controversial, life-size sculpture of a “comfort woman.” Hotta was apprehended after security camera footage at a convenience store showed him using a fax machine on August 2, the same day the handwritten threat was faxed to the triennial organizers. Read the full story here.

Load More Posts

Hyperallergic is a forum for serious, playful, and radical thinking about art in the world today. Founded in 2009, Hyperallergic is headquartered in Brooklyn, New York.

- Home
- About
- Newsletters
- Store
- Contribute
- Jobs
- Internships
- Advertise
- Contact
- News
- Features
- Reviews
- Podcast
- Events
- Weekend

Get our Newsletter 126k