An open-top box with a rectangular base is to be constructed from a rectangular piece of cardboard 16 inches wide and 21 inches long by cutting the same size square from each corner and then bending up the resulting sides. Find the size of the corner square (to be removed) that will produce a box having the largest possible volume. You may disregard the thickness of the cardboard.